Domestic Violence Awareness - The Lautenberg Act was nicknamed for the New Jersey Congressman Frank Lautenberg who proposed the amendment as an addition to the 1968 Gun Control Act. This is significant since it makes it unlawful for people who have been convicted of the crime of domestic violence to receive, possess, ship or transport any firearm or ammunition in interstate or foreign commerce. It also makes it a felony to send firearms or ammunition to anyone that has been convicted of this crime. Military personnel and law enforcement officers are not exempt from the Lautenberg Act, since it also applies to privately owned weapons. Military personnel with a conviction of domestic violence could be prevented from going on missions or appointed to positions that require use of firearms. In some cases, service personnel may be discharged. Police Officers with Domestic Violence Convictions have been dismissed in a similar fashion. Service members and civilian employees on board the Center are encouraged to wear purple on Thursdays throughout the month as a sign of solidarity toward increased public awareness against the crime of domestic violence.
