Navy volunteers from Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam (JBPHH) teamed up with community volunteers to clear debris and tall brush along the lower Waipahu shoreline May 13.

A total of 37 volunteers (25 Navy and 12 community members) cleaned up an area approximately 48,000 square feet behind Pupuole Community Park in lower Waipahu, removing trash and invasive vegetation.

"I'm really very appreciative, it's a symbol of leadership with the Navy and I think it could have been better all these years if we had the right people, like the Navy, come out and help clean this area," said Hawaii State Rep. Rida Cabanilla, who represents the Waipahu and Ewa communities. "It's nice to see all these young energetic people coming out to help," she said.

Cabanilla said the area was neglected for so long because it was believed to be Navy property.

Capt. Richard Kitchens, the commander of JBPHH, said that the area was not Navy property, but given its close proximity to Pearl Harbor, he offered to partner with the community's clean-up efforts.

"The representative has come to us and expressed some concerns with the fact that all this overgrowth is unsightly and it promotes more people dumping trash," said Kitchens. "Anything that gets into any of the drainage canals ultimately ends up in the harbor, so certainly from the standpoint of picking up trash and debris on the ground before it gets into the harbor, it helps us prevent an environmental protection issue," he explained.

Another concern was suspected activities that can be concealed behind the dense mangrove.

"It also provides, if you get into the cover and the concealment behind there, the opportunity for some illicit activities to go on, so we agreed to partner with her in the community clean-up to help address this issue," said Kitchens.

In just two and a half hours, the volunteers filled up 15 garbage bags with trash, removed 180 cubic yards of green waste, 90 cubic yards of assorted bulky waste and three tons of metal, including 20 shopping carts and one flatbed truck.

The abandoned truck presented a challenge to the volunteers as it was too heavy to be carried out of the woods.

Master-at-Arms 1st Class Laurie Taylor, the chief master-at-arms for Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam, was able to use her Jeep, equipped with an electric winch, to pull the wrecked truck out of the woods.

"I think it's important that all of us contribute to the community," said Kitchens. "I'm happy to be here as part of Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam, I'm happy to partner with Representative Cabanilla, and I look forward to getting this area cleaned up and turn it back over to the city."

Pitching gem keeps NIOC 'A' undefeated

Cryptologic Technician (Maintenance) 1st Class Darrell Herschel gave up only eight hits in throwing a complete-game shutout to lead the Navy Information Operations Command (NIOC) 'A' team over Pacific Command/Joint Intelligence Operation Center (PACOM/JIOC), 3-0, in an Ashore Intramural Softball League game at Millican Field, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam on May 12.

Herschel worked out of bases-loaded jams in the second and fourth innings and also stranded runners on second and third in the top of the first to help NIOC gain the victory and earn a tie for the top spot in the league with a 5-0 record. PACOM/JIOC saw its mark drop to 3-3 with the loss.

"I was just pitching it and my guys played good defense," said Herschel about his stellar effort on the mound. "I just put it in there and tried not to walk anybody, and let my defense play behind me."

Using pitches with a heavy backspin as his main weapon, Herschel retired four out of the seven leadoff hitters he faced and induced grounders in the fifth and sixth innings that were turned into double plays.

Although Herschel downplayed his effectiveness, Cryptologic Technician (Collection) 1st Class Dustin Tieskoetler, center fielder for NIOC, said that the pitcher's performance was the main reason for the team's victory over PACOM/JIOC.

"I think he's one of the best pitchers in the league," Tieskoetler said. "He just throws strikes and that helps us out a lot. We play with him so much, we kind of know where he pitches so we can get a jump on the ball."

While neither team was able to produce much offense during the entire game, NIOC did just enough to secure its fifth win of the season.

The team broke out in the lead in the bottom of the first inning, when Cryptologic Technician (Collection)

Damage Controlman 2nd Class Douglas Burrill, center fielder for Pacific Command/Joint Intelligence Operation Center (PACOM/JIOC), makes a diving catch during the team's game against Navy Information Operations Command (NIOC) 'A' in an Ashore Intramural Softball League matchup at Millican Field, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam on May 12.

2nd Class Marshal Smoke stroked a two-out double to drive in teammate Staff Sgt. Kevin Sunyak, who lead off the frame with a walk.

The score remained at 1-0 until the bottom of the sixth, when N I O C plated two runners to up its lead to three.

"I think that was huge," said

Tieskoetler about the team's two-run inning. "The defense could go out there knowing that we had a bit of a cushion."

Following the double score,

Herschel put the game away by setting down PACOM/JIOC hitters in order on three fly balls.

"Three runs is not a whole lot," Herschel said. "I just tried to get out of there without losing."

The final three outs ended a frustrating day at the plate for PACOM/JIOC hitters, said Army Sgt. Brandon Smith who, along with his fellow teammates, just couldn't seem to come up with the clutch hit.

A pop out to second doused the team's threat in the first inning, while a fly out to center and a force play at second killed potential rallies in the second and fourth innings with the bases loaded.

"It's hard when you don't get your leadoff men on and then strand three runners on third," said Smith of about PACOM/JIOC's tough day at the plate. "He (Herschel) wasn't doing anything special. We just hit it where they were. We hit line drives to the shortstop and first baseman, and when you do that, you can't do anything about it."

Medical Group has no cure for Tigers' roaring bats

The 535th Airlift Squadron (535 AS) Tigers slugged three home runs in the first three innings of play to grab a commanding lead and overpower the 15th Medical Group (15 MDG), 23-2, in a mercy-rule-shortened game between two teams in the Hickam Intramural Softball League Tuesday Division at Hickam Fourplex, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam on May 17.

"We just all showed up to play," said Capt. Steve Nolan about the Tigers' impressive win. "Everybody was ready to go. Our hitting shoes were definitely on."

Despite having to scramble at the last minute to fill its lineup with the required minimum number of players, the Tigers still managed to break out their bats early and often in cruising to their sixth victory against only one defeat. The 15 MDG saw its record fall to 2-5.

Against the 15 MDG, the Tigers opened up the first inning with a torrid hitting attack that produced five runs on six hits. The inning's big blow came off the bat of Nolan, who stroked an inside-the-park homer with a runner on base to drive in two runs.

Army Spc. Maurice Boykin of the 15th Medical Group (15 MDG) slides into second base as shortstop Air Force Capt. Mike Wells of the 535th Airlift Squadron (535 AS) Tigers makes a throw to first base during a Hickam Intramural Softball League Tuesday Division game at Hickam Fourplex, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam on May 17.

"That built up confidence," said Nolan about the team's early advantage. "It let us know that we're here to play. But the biggest thing is you shouldn't get complacent - don't let down."

As it turned out, the first inning was just a warm-up for the Tigers, as the team was even better in the top of the second.

The Tigers led off the second inning with five straight hits and went on to rack up three more singles en route to seven runs. This time, the fireworks was provided by Maj. Blaine Baker, who smacked a three-run inside-the-park jack that put the team's run total in double figures at 10.

Not to be outdone by Baker, Nolan came to bat in the top of third with two men on base and nobody out, and promptly crushed a pitch from 15 MDG pitcher Col. Vickie Hughes over the left-field fence for a three-run shot.

After taking a 15-1 lead, the Tigers put an exclamation point on their exceptional day at the plate by batting around the order to score seven more runs in the top of the fourth and put the game away for good.

"Anytime you get one guy on a roll, it's definitely contagious," said Nolan about the Tigers' tremendous hitting attack. "You saw that in the first inning. One guy leads off, the next guy hits it and you just keep it going."

Although it has been a common occurrence for the Tigers, a flying squadron, to search for players to fill their roster, Baker said that the situation hasn't fazed the players from competing at a high level.

Both he and Nolan agreed that while it's good to perform well on the field, time spend with fellow squadron members is far more important than getting wins.

"The key for us is to just have fun," Baker admitted. "We don't put a whole lot of time into structured practices and don't pressure our players. In the long run, that pays off because we're relaxed."

Nolan added, "Missions come first, and then if we can field a team we can come out here and have a good time and do the best we can to come out on top."

Still, with a good mix of veteran and new players, Baker and Nolan are confident that if everyone on the team gets a chance to play, the Tigers are good enough to go all the way.

"I'm confident in our ability to come out here and compete against anybody on any given night," Nolan stated. "If we get our players out here, we're ready to play and think that we can win every game."

Big first inning jumpstarts Jacksonville over Chosin

USS Jacksonville (SSN 699) exploded for six runs, then cruised to a 14-6 victory over USS Chosin (CG 65) in an Afloat Intramural Softball League matchup at Millican Field, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam on May 14.

The win pushed Jacksonville's league record to 2-1, while Chosin saw its mark even out at 2-2.

Jacksonville's quick start was aided through fielding miscues when, with runners on second and third, a misjudged fly ball off the bat of Senior Chief Electronics Technician Chris Jensen dropped untouched into right field to score the first two runs of the game.

"As soon as I hit it, I knew it was going to be trouble, so I figured I was just gonna run," said Jensen, who ended up on third after the botched fielding play and scored on a base hit by the next batter.

Later in the same inning, Machinist's Mate 2nd Class Charley Herndon delivered a single to drive in the final two runs of the team's six-run outburst. In total, Jacksonville batters banged out six hits en route to its early lead.

Although Chosin scored a run in the bottom of the first inning, the team was set down in order in its next two at-bats by Jacksonville pitcher Lt. j.g. Kyle Haubold.

Then in the top of the fourth inning, Jacksonville took advantage of Chosin's silent bats, as the submariners burst out for three more runs to extend its lead to 9-1.

Once again, the big blow of the inning came off the bat of Jensen, who this time blasted a shot over the left fielder's head that nearly cleared the fence.

The bomb drove in two more runs as Jensen strode into second base with a standup double.

"I can normally hit really hard," Jensen said. "I saw the left fielder up, so I decided to try and burn him and it worked."

Two innings later, a Haubold leadoff double led to two more runs, before Haubold came back to finished off a three-run seventh with a two-run triple.

While Chosin posted four runs in the bottom of the sixth, the team's lack of production in early innings of the game prevented it from making a complete comeback.

"The biggest problem was that the guys got down on themselves," said Chosin Fire Controlman 2nd Class Adam Tripp. "I think it was more us being upset with each other on the field. Everybody was mad and then we weren't paying attention at batting."

Tripp added that if he and his players had kept their composure, the outcome might have been different.

"We have a good team," Tripp said. "If everybody comes out here ready to play, we're really good."

Meanwhile, Jensen pointed out that the win over Chosin is a good indication of how solid the team can be if it has a full squad.

Jensen stated that the team's only loss came in the first game of the season and was a result of having key players missing from its lineup.

"I wasn't here and a couple of key officers weren't here, so we were missing a lot of players," Jensen noted. "We're going to be a contender. I don't think we're going to lose easily if we get everyone to show up."

Intelligence Squadron deadlocks NHCH in 0-0 tie

The 324th Intelligence Squadron (324 IS) stepped up from its underdog status to battle Naval Health Clinic Hawaii (NHCH) to a 0-0 deadlock in a Soccer Intramural League Blue Division showdown at Hickam Football/Soccer Field, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam on May 14.

Entering the game with only one win against four defeats and a tie, the 324 IS used a strong defense to fend off the favored NHCH, which was among the division's top teams with a record of 3-1-1, before its latest matchup.

"They were very physical," said NHCH striker Hospital Corpsman 3rd Class Omar Garcia, who had numerous opportunities at goal, but was turned away each time by a very tough 324 IS defense. "I think we underestimated them."

Airman 1st Class Rene Villanueva, a striker for 324, said while he felt that NHCH was very good, he was certain that the 324 could keep pace with its opponent if the team challenged for every ball.

Either way, Villanueva said that he and his teammates entered the game without feeling any pressure and made sure to just go out and play their game.

"As far as offense and defense, I think we were pretty evenly matched," Villanueva said. "We just come out here for fun."

Although the 324 IS struggled to mount any offense in the first half, the team stepped up its attack on the goal later in the game and narrowly missed on a couple of chances to pull out a win.

However, the strong defensive play of NHCH helped the team withstand the frantic attempts by the 324 and avert its second loss of the season.

Aviation Maintenance Administration Airman Mark Jones, goalkeeper for NHCH, explained that teamwork was the main reason for the squad's tough defense.

"The ones we got for defense, they know what they're doing," Jones said. "Our midfielders will step down and even our strikers will come back to help defend."

While the 324 came close to knocking in at least a couple of goals, NHCH had its opportunities as well – especially Garcia who had one breakaway shot barely miss the inside of the net.

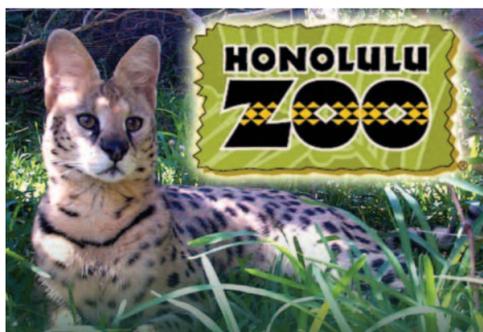

In the first half, Garcia swooped in from the left wing, only to have his shot turned away on a heads up play by the 324 goalkeeper.

"If you try to pop it as hard as you can, its just going to fly over (the goal)," Garcia said. "I tried to place it, but the goalkeeper got a hand on it."

Even though the game ended in a tie, Garcia said that it was a very disappointing outing for NHCH, which was looking to keep pace with the division leaders by picking up its fourth win of the season.

The NHCH striker said he hopes that the team will use the let down to spring toward a stronger effort in the future.

"This feels like we lost, but you get what you put into it," Garcia admitted. "We haven't really practiced as a team for two weeks. This is going to make us better because we now know that we can't underestimate teams anymore and we have to practice."

Military personnel invited to free zoo day June 4

Honolulu Mayor Peter Carlisle and the City and County of Honolulu, in gratitude for the military's dedication to serving and protecting the country, invites Hawaii's active-duty military, National Guard, Reserves, retirees and their family members to enjoy a free day at the Honolulu Zoo. The free day will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. June 4.

"For those military families who might not regularly venture into Waikiki, this day offers an opportunity to explore the area and enjoy this beautiful Hawaiian setting," said Manuel Mollinedo, director of the Honolulu Zoo. "Come and experience over 1,000 rare and exotic animals and plants from around the world."

The event features free admission for all those with valid military ID. There is limited parking at the Honolulu Zoo metered parking lot with additional public parking at the Waikiki Shell and around Kapiolani Park. Special military entry will be through the original zoo entrance.

In addition to the City and County of Honolulu, the event is co-sponsored by BAE Systems, the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce and the Honolulu Zoological Society.
