Veterans' Day particularly significant while nation at war

Donna Miles

American Forces Press Service

Observing Veterans' Day is especially important this year as America's military members put their lives in danger to protect the country and defend its freedoms, Veterans Affairs Secretary R. James Nicholson told American Forces Press Service.

"We are a nation at war against an enemy that has openly vowed its desire to destroy us," Nicholson said. "They mean it; we know that because they have taken steps to do that, attacking us in different ways. So we have fellow citizens out there on the front lines trying to protect our freedom and procure freedom for the people of Iraq and Afghanistan."

Demands on the force waging the terror war give special importance to this year's Veterans' Day observances and a renewed national commitment to honor and support its more than 24 million veterans, he said.

President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed Nov. 11 Armistice Day in 1919 to commemorate the end of hostilities in World War I one year earlier. During the early 1950s, the name was changed to Veterans' Day and the observance was expanded to honor veterans of all wars.

Veterans' Day upholds a longstanding American tradition that began when Gen. George Washington acknowledged the "debt of gratitude" the country owed its troops who served in the Continental Army, Nicholson said.

"And that has taken the form of our citizens compensating our veterans for any diminution they have suffered as a result of their service, whether physical or mental, and (that) it will provide them with continuous health care throughout their life for having served their country," he said.

Abraham Lincoln underscored that commitment during his second inaugural address, pledging to care for "him who has borne the battle, and his widow and his orphan," the secretary said.

Nicholson called this pledge, inscribed at the entrance to the Department of Veterans Affairs headquarters here, "the mantra of the VA."

The VA fulfills that pledge every day by providing health care to more than 7.5 million veterans, with more than one million visiting VA health care facilities every week, he noted. In addition, the VA provides benefits to more than 3.5 million veterans.

Continued support from the administration and Congress ensures that the VA can continue providing this first-class care for veterans, including those returning from combat, he said. He called the 70 percent growth in the VA health-care budget since 2001 a record.

"People want our veterans to be taken care of, but especially those who are coming back from Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom with injuries," Nicholson said. "And we're organized to provide them with the very best care possible, both their physical and mental injuries. We are well-funded and well-staffed to do that."

During this year's Veterans' Day commemorations, Nicholson urges all veterans to wear their service ribbons and medals to "show the pride they take in having served our country" and ensure that other people recognize the contributions they have made.

This demonstration of service will "add to the great patriotic fervor" that surrounds Veterans' Day, he said.

Nicholson said he encourages all Americans, and especially veterans, to join in that fervor, as he and his staff at the VA will.

"Every day is Veterans Day here at the VA," he said. "But the 11th day of the 11th month is always a very special and busy day here."

Military Family Appreciation Celebration set for Nov. 17

In honor of Military Family Appreciation Month during November, Morale, Welfare and Recreation will host a Military Family Appreciation Celebration beginning at 4 p.m. Nov. 17 at Ford Island across from the Navy Lodge.

"Everything is focused on giving families an opportunity to have a memorable moment together. The activities and games will be there for them to spend some quality time together," said Lara Katine, special events program director for Navy Region Hawai'i.

Kids and parents will be able to look forward to a host of free activities. A free petting zoo, ceramic and raku painting, bounce houses, face painting, field games and arts and crafts will be offered. A Home Depot's Kids Clinic will be there, offering supplies and guidance for families who want to build a small project together.

"There will be constant live entertainment on the stage," said Katine. The celebration will kick off with a Family Fun Run. Registration will be at 3:45 p.m.; at 4 p.m. family members will be taking their marks for a race that is less than a mile. Shirts will be distributed for the run while supplies last. Also at 4 p.m., the Family Stars On Stage will entertain everyone as military families sing their hearts out in the karaoke contest. Following will be the Raggs Kidds Club, a spunky group of four canines, ready to rock the stage.

NIX Performing Arts Center Show will feature children of all ages displaying their talents in performing arts and dance in a high-energy show. Also, Mojo Gymnastics will offer a hands-on demonstration. To wrap up the night, Movie Under the Stars will feature "Cars", rated G at 6:30 p.m. Families can bring their beach chairs and mats to relax on, as the sun goes down and the movie begins.

This free event is open to military-affiliated and Department of Defense personnel, family members and sponsored guests. Food will be available for purchase. Also, in an effort to show gratitude and appreciation, an anonymous sponsor has provided funds on behalf of the Navy Marine Corps Relief Society to purchase approximately 100 free meals for active duty personnel.

For more information about the event, call 473-2431 or visit www.greatlife-hawaii.com.

Calling all smokers - go 'cold turkey' for a day and win a turkey

Stephanie Ouano, RN

Naval Health Clinic Hawai'i

Naval Health Clinic Hawai'i (NHCLH) will support the Great American Smokeout on Nov. 16. On this day and every day, the NHCLH's health promotion department challenges smokers to put down their cigarettes for one day and try to get one step closer to a smoke-free life.

Through Nov. 16, there are two ways to enter for a chance to receive an 'opportunity ticket' in the drawing for a turkey:

- If you are a tobacco user, turn in your tobacco products (at least half a pack of cigarettes, cigars, dip, chew, pipe tobacco, or clove cigarettes).

- If you are a non-tobacco user, but would like to participate, bring in a tobacco advertisement you have seen in a magazine or newspaper.

Turn in all tobacco products or advertisements to the health promotion department, room 103 or 105A, Makalapa Branch Health Clinic and receive an opportunity ticket.

On Nov. 16, turn in all tobacco products or advertisements at NHCLH's booths at the Navy Exchange and Marine Corps Base Hawai'i - Kaneohe commissaries from 9 a.m.-noon or Hickam Commissary from 1-3 p.m. to receive an opportunity ticket.

Between now and Nov. 16, you can stop by the Great American Smokeout Pledge Wall at the health promotion department, Makalapa Branch Health Clinic and commit to quit. What better way to reward yourself for kicking tobacco that day. Be a winner and become (or stay) tobacco free now. Quit to win. All active duty members and beneficiaries, as well as Department of Defense civilian employees are eligible. For more information, call the NHCLH's health promotion department at 473-1880, ext 283/282.

Registered users click into health care resources

Jenna Holtz

TriWest Healthcare Alliance

Registering on TriWest Healthcare Alliance's comprehensive Web site allows TRICARE beneficiaries to access a larger window of resources at www.triwest.com.

Becoming a registered user also gives TRICARE's west region beneficiaries a faster and easier source regarding information about their benefits. In addition to visiting a local TRICARE Service Center (TSC) or calling 1-888-TRIWEST, beneficiaries can access information about their health care benefits online anytime, day or night, at www.triwest.com.

The site offers many resources for beneficiaries, such as TRICARE-related forms and information about their benefits. For registered users, much more is also available at the click of a mouse.

Features such as tracking out-of-pocket expenses and providing updates about other health insurance are available after registering. Other features include viewing and printing explanations of benefits (EOBs), registering for automatic enrollment fee payment options, receiving TRICARE updates, verifying eligibility, and tracking the status of claims.

Registered users also may sign up to receive "TRICARE to You", a new monthly e-newsletter filled with TRICARE tips and related news.

Registration is quick and easy. Beneficiaries can select the 'register as a new user' button from the main page of www.triwest.com and follow the directions. There is also a demo available on the main page that walks users through the registration process.
