

It is simply a matter of pride.

For those of you who are already within the policy, thanks!

"... personnel will present a good public image, and maintain good order, discipline and morale appropriate to the Japan NEX."

"Each individual, whether military or civilian, is an ambassador of the United States and the U.S. Navy while on this NEX. As such, individual dress, attire and conduct should reflect credit upon oneself, the U.S. Navy and the United States."

COMNAVFORJAPANSTH H03.3B

Shower Shoe:

A rubber, water resistant sandal commonly worn while using and transitioning to common showers on board ships/barracks or informal foot wear around your home. Prevents the spread of foot fungus and is a Navy uniform item. Not suitable for wear outside your living quarters.

DO

Athletic vs. Casual:

The distinction between Athletic Active and Casual wear can be close. Clothes that were meant to work out in and only work out in are Active wear and should only be worn working out or in the gym.

There are some clothes that can be worn in public and also be worn to work out in. If those clothes are neat, clean and presentable, they can possibly be casual wear. But, if you just wore those same clothes to work out in, don't expect to go into the Navy Exchange or any other outlet in that category.

DO

Need further guidance?

Your pants/skirt should cover whatever is under them.

PANTS!
This is too Baggy.

TOO SHORT!

Unacceptable Garments & Inappropriate Wear

Pants not too long, T-Shirt under Basketball Jersey showing less than 1 inch of midriff.

OK!

ACCEPTABLE ATTIRE!

