Since 1990, May has been designated as Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month. On May 17, the Joint Force Diversity Committee held an observance to celebrate and acknowledge the roles Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders have played throughout history.

“Throughout American history Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders have faced many challenges,” said Lt. Col. John Sitar, 47th Air Base Group deputy commander.

For more than decades, and against hostility based in ignorance and prejudice, they fought for equality and acceptance.

Through persistence and determination they have increased their numbers in schools, served with distinction and valor in the military, and have become essential figures shaping policies at local, state and national levels. It is important to remember the sacrifices they made and recognize their many accomplishments in shaping and enriching our society.

In 2018, the Girl Scouts of America honored the first Japanese immigrants to the U.S. and the day the transcontinental railroad was completed in 1869, this year’s theme is, “Unite Our Voices Working Together.”

The guest speaker, retired U.S. Air Force Maj. Gen. Deryll Wong, is currently the director for the Pacific Region for Sherry Nevada Corporation and the senior advisor to the University of Hawaii. During his time in the military, Maj. Gen. Wong flew the C-141 Starlifter during the Vietnam War, took command of the Hawaii Air National Guard, and served as the adjutant general for the state of Hawaii.

After his military service, he was given the opportunity to sail on the Hōkūleʻa during two legs of its trip around the world.

“Of all the things that influenced my life gave me a strong sense of respect, honor, integrity and caring not only for people for our surroundings,” said Wong.

"Community is not about any one person, it’s about partnering together so our world can be a better place and we can take care of one another. This is a strong message carried by the Pacific Islander landers, and is rooted in the theme for this month, “Unite Our Voices Working Together.”

National Asian American Pacific Islander Heritage Month is to honor the courage of those who fought for freedom and peace in the United States.

Historian, recounted the story of one survivor.

Jim Neuman, Navy Region Hawaii historian, recounted the story of one survivor.

"There was a lone Sailor with a breeze, desperately trying to fight back the flames," said Neuman.

"Moments later there was another explosion, and while looking back to see if the Sailor was all right, he could see nothing but the uncommanded theme, "Unite Our Voices Working Together."" "Today we honor the brave women and men that were a Shot Loud," said Capt. Jeff Bernard, JBPBH’s chief of staff and special guest speaker.

"We will never forget the fact they were playing for the cause of freedom, the same reason we are here today," added Capt. Bernard.

Six ships would sink in the next 24 hours, killing 183 personnel and injuring 396 more, in what was the second-largest tragedy of Pearl Harbor.

Port Dawgs host run for the fallen

在515th Air Mobility Operations Wing运行期间，在5月5日，在代号为Port Dawgs的515th Air Mobility Operations Wing在珍珠港/ Hickam May 15.

波特道格斯指挥官体验到战斗的悲剧，由我们的成员，Tech. Sgt. (Curtis) Eklund，说，Senior Master Sgt. Duane Fish，Pacifi c Air Forces air transportation functional area manager，

"In 2013, the Port Dawg community experienced the tragic murder of one of our members, Tech. Sgt. (Curtis) Eklund," said Senior Master Sgt. Duane Fish, Pacific Air Forces air transportation functional area manager.

"In 2013, Kadena Air Base, Japan, held a memorial run in honor of Eklund, and began what would become an annual event across the entire air transportation career field. Since then, every year all aerial ports and ATC across the world come together during National Transportation Week to hold a memorial run."

"Port Dawg Memorial Run is held all across the globe," Fish said. "Several locations held their run on the same day, the third Friday in May allowing our Port Dawg community to come together. This unites our career field, and builds on the strong comradery that our career field already maintains."

"The memorial run is an annual tradition among Port Dawgs to memorialize fallen teammates across the Air Force with a ceremony and formation run."

"Our career field is very small and deaths in our community are felt across the globe," Fish said. "Our career field is inherently dangerous."

But, as a force provider we ensure the warfighters receive the necessary equipment to accomplish their missions. This annual memorial event is just one way that we as a career field have chosen to pay particular attention to these lost in our career field."

This year’s run celebrated the lives of Staff Sgt. Daniel Albert, Senior Airman Billie Dutton, Airman 1st Class Caleb Bailey, Airman 1st Class Patricia Roy and Airman 1st Class Montalbano. Aerial porters, commonly referred to as Port Dawgs, are responsible for military logistics related to aerial ports.

One of the best ways for us to be safer and more secure, both on and off duty, is to always be aware of our surroundings. You never know what you’re “seeing something.”

The other day I was driving on base and a car came flying from the left of the new paired crosswalks on North Road as a pedestrian crossed in front of me. I stopped the car and the driver in the oncoming lane was distracted but otherwise unharmed. My first thought while stopped was “I could have run over that person.” I didn’t have time to think; the car was already halfway in the crosswalk. Fortunately, I was able to stop the car and the pedestrian made it safe for the rest of the people to cross.

One of the best ways for us to be safer and more secure, both on and off duty, is to always be aware of our surroundings. You never know what you’re “seeing something.”
CIVILIAN, NAVY MILITARY LEADERS ENGAGE AT LEADERSHIP SYMPOSIUM

Navy civilian employees attended the Navy Leadership and Career Development Symposium on Ford Island, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam May 22-23. The Department of the Navy (DON) and commands U.S. Pacific Fleet (PACFLT), in partnership with the Executive Diversity Advisory Council hosted the event.

The symposium’s objective is to encourage, foster and sharpen leadership skills while also teaching career development strategies. "The program is designed to provide leadership development for our civilian workforce,” said Paige Hinkle-Bowles, the civilian workforce,” said Lynn Simpson, director, Total Fleet Force, Manpower & Personnel, PACFLT, Adm. Scott H. Swift, commander, PACFLT, Todd Schafer, executive director, and director of staff, PACFLT, Rear Adm. John Palmer, director Logistis, Fleet Supply and Ordnance, PACFLT, Craig Wheldon, executive director, MARFORPAC, John Wood, director, Pacific Outreach, U.S. Pacific Command and Rear Adm. Brian F. Fort, CNRHB and Naval Surface Group Mid-Pacific.

Fort spoke about his seven charges of leadership and how it applies to the forum. These seven charges are lead with integrity, be a bold decision maker, communicate every day, take care of your people, critically self-assess your performance, rise to the challenge in a crisis and respect your vulnerability to your own vanity.

"It is a huge honor to be here, Fort said. "When I commanded a destroyer, I wrote a philosophy called, ‘Command every day.’ That is how I wanted to see you and how I wanted us to work together and command every day.

"I learned over the next ten years since I wrote that philosophy, that it is not just for commanding officers or the Navy service members, it is a philosophy for all leadership and how to lead in life,” Fort said.

"Leadership is a skill, you have to practice it every day,” he said.

Leaders from PACFLT, Commander, Navy Region Hawaii (CNRH), and Marine Forces Pacific (MARFORPAC) offered insight and experience to those in attendance.

“Long hours with contractors to get the job done, the consistency of watchstanders, repetitively briefing over 200 watchstanders, and getting all items for secure measures were among other issues that had to be dealt with,” Covell said. Despite setbacks from proposed openings slated in January 2018, Gagnon noted how the completion was a huge step in gaining 125 seats for command members and how NAVFAC! took on the project challenges with good grace.

"A coin is one way to say thanks, but the true thanks will come in seeing 125 Sailors finally coming to work in their own space,” Gagnon said as he closed his recognition of appreciation to Pan and Covell. Going forward, Cryptologic Technician (Technical) Chief Jose Ocaña, current site security manager of Bldg. 590, plans to make sure everybody has resources, security protocols are in place, and standard operating procedures are developed to keep the building running effectively.

Multiple military bands provided a musical backdrop to the theme, “Letters from Home,” during the 33rd annual Joint Military Concert at Hawaii Theatre Center, May 19.

This year, the U.S. Air Force Band of the Pacific and the Honolulu Navy League hosted the event, occurring alongside Military Appreciation Month and Armed Forces Day.

Members of the 25th Infantry Division Band, Hawaii Army National Guard Band, Marine Corps Forces Pacific Band, U.S. Pacific Fleet Band and Air Force Band of the Pacific intermingled to present a free show to the public.

“(The concert is) a unique opportunity for all the services on the island to come together and perform during a period of leadership transition and show force cohesion and how wonderful our armed services work together,” said Gregory D. Dunn, Hawaii Theatre Center president and CEO.

By leadership transition, Dunn was referring to the U.S. Pacific Fleet change of command that occurred May 17. He added that the concert also allows the general public to see a different side of the military.

“They get to see some of the most talented musicians that our United States armed services has to offer,” he said. Dunn said attendance to the concert has doubled from last year. He credited the turnout to the theater’s new system that makes tickets available online.

Service members waved digital presentations via projector screen with live music and acting.

As Lt. Col. Moore Urrutia, the commander of U.S. Air Force Band of the Pacific, conducted a piece called “Mars,” from “The Planets,” a visual presentation featuring space complemented the music. Colors, numbers and pictures flew across the screen as the music played on.

Maj. Scott McKenzie conducted a variation of Leroy Anderson’s “The Typewriter,” using the sound of a text message notification from a smartphone instead of a typewriter.

Marine Corps Gunnery Sgt. Cheri Espinoza and Air Force Staff Sgt. Nicholas Daniels sat upon the stage floor, mimicking sending each other text messages in tune with the song.

“I think it’s pretty important for us to take some time to reflect on the services,” said Capt. James Moore, public affairs officer, U.S. Pacific Air Forces. “What better occasion (to reflect than) to get together and enjoy the music of all the joint services coming together.”

Moore said that the services depend on each other and the concert itself is “a pretty good visual of how everything comes together.”

“This marks the 33rd Joint Military Band Appreciation Concert and the Honolulu Navy League continues to partner with the rotating lead band, and in 2018 this is the USAF Band of the Pacific,” said Jane Ferreira, executive director of the Honolulu Navy League.

“The playbill rouses patriotic senses and revives vivid memories of Memorial Day, parades and picnics with family and friends. All of this nestled in the comfort and elegance of the historic Hawaii Theatre. Mahalo to our active-duty Armed Forces members for their service; to our veterans – for your distinguished patriotism.”

In a game that finished without any goals scored during regulation play, Pacific Command/Joint Intelligence Operation Center (PACOM/JIOC) needed a penalty shot goal from Staff Sgt. Addison Hall in overtime to get past USS John Paul Jones (DDG 53) and win the Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam intramural soccer championship May 20 at Earhart Field.

After a scoreless game in regulation and a tie in the first rotation of penalty kicks, Hall got the chance to put it away for good and he didn’t disappoint his teammates.

Hall said that he was picked in advance to be the team’s sixth man in the rotation and when his teammate before him missed a shot, he knew that he would be up.

“We were expecting to cycle through the rest of the roster, so when our fifth kicker missed, I was like, oh, OK,” Hall said. “It wasn’t too nerve wracking. I’ve played my entire life, so I’ve been in similar situations before. I just zoned out and said, OK, I have a lot of room. I could have gone wider, but it still went in.”

Hall admitted that being the sixth man in the rotation might have helped him attack the goal.

After watching the goalkeeper in action, Hall said that he had a plan, when he stepped up to the ball.

“I noticed that when our team went to the left, that’s the ones (the goalkeeper) would block,” Hall said. “So, I wanted to go to my right.”

While the game was heartbreaking for John Paul Jones and victorious for PACOM/JIOC, both teams seemed to breathe a sigh of relief after Hall’s kick put an end to the contest.

With the game starting at around noon, the climate at Earhart Field was warm, but it wasn’t as nearly as hot some of the players in the game, who were filled with frustration.

“It’s rare to see any scored goal reversed and overruled, but on this day, officials called back not only one, but two goals.

The first one came in the first half.

Staff Sgt. Curtis Manning broke away from the pack and drove down the middle of the field, where he beat the goalkeeper on a 50/50 ball.

The celebration was short-lived however, as the referees ruled that the goal wasn’t good because the backstop was off its mark.

Then in the second half, the tables were reversed, as Logistic Specialist Seaman Patrick Richmond drove into the box and blasted a short shot past the goalkeeper and into the net.

This score was also ruled no good, as officials had apparently called the ball out of bounds prior to the kick.

Cryptologic Technician (Maintenance) 2nd Class Alec Schreiner was on the winning PACOM/JIOC team, but felt that questionable calls certainly took something away from the victory.

“I probably shouldn’t say anything that would be on paper,” he said. “We come to play, but sometimes it doesn’t always happen smoothly. Unfortunately, you have to follow what they call. If they say it’s no good, you just play on. We just kind of tried to wipe it from our minds, clear our heads and play like we should.”

However, besides the controversial calls, Schreiner said that the game was played like a championship should be played.

“Everyone gave it their all, left nothing on the field and you can’t ask for anything more than that,” Schreiner said. “It was definitely up there.”

Although Cryptologic Technician Maintenance 2nd Class Alex Schreiner was on the winning PACOM/JIOC team, he felt that questionable calls certainly took something away from the victory.

“Everyone gave it their all, left nothing on the field and you can’t ask for anything more than that,” Schreiner said. “It was definitely up there,” he pointed out. “No one wants to come to a championship game and completely blow out the competition. I think it answers well that everybody likes a challenge.”
After losing the championship game in the Above 30 basketball division earlier this year, the 545th Transportation Company (545/TC) got another chance to redeem itself after earning a spot in the Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam intramural basketball open division title showdown against USS Hopper (DDG 70) on May 17 at Hickam Fitness Center.

Although the contest between the two teams was a tough back-and-forward affair, in the end, the 545/TC didn’t let one slip away as the team hung on to a 38-35 victory to become Joint Base intramural basketball champs for 2018.

“We had a monkey on our back, so we knew that we couldn’t come out here and lose,” said Lt. Cmdr. Staff Sgt. Allinson Davis. “We knew that we had to come out here and get it all, so we focused on what we had to do.”

Early in the game, with the 545/TC leading 8-6, Spec. Thomas Craig gave the 545/TC a little breathing room, when he splashed down a three-point shot and followed up with back-to-back makes from the free-throw line for a 1:3-advantage.

On the next trip down the court, Craig attacked the basket once again, but missed the shot.

Luckily for the 545, as the ball rolled off of the front of the rim, it was immediately grabbed by Pfc. Zak Lee, who threw it down for a two-handed stuff shot that made it 15-6.

“I thought it’s mine, I’ve got to get this one,” Lee said about his thunderous jam. “It looked pretty good and it felt pretty good.”

The quick 545/TC hot streak, saw Craig and Lee be the dynamic duo, as the players combined for 15 of the 545’s 21 points in the first half.

“Do a game and we just try to do our jobs,” Lee said, “and we just try to do it.”

As the game unfolded, 545 Technician 3rd Class Anthony Haddix got a hold of Craig, before Lee secured the win with two free throws that made it 17-10 with 7.5 seconds left in the game.

Haddix, the 6-foot-6-inch center for the 545, came up huge in the second half after only scoring two points against the 400,000 gravestones at Arlington Cemetery.

He then gave Hopper its momentum back, as the players started to shed tears over the graves of their ancestors.

As you look at the momentum that made from the free-throw line, see them.

Worse, the Meat Connection is now free of honor alive.

On Monday, to keep their legacy and the all-volunteer force. They know that there is no longer a possibility, no matter how small.

However, there are three other things — things that are more important than the grill or the weather or the boring hamburger patties? Will you plug in strings of lights, relax in lawn chairs, and enjoy your day-off work? As you should.

1. First, stop. Set aside the mundane concerns of the day. Phase the frantic pace of the weekend. Block out the immediate. Focus on what gives Me-you plug in strings of lights, relax in lawn chairs, and enjoy your day-off work? As you should.

2. Second, see. Open your eyes. Look around. Find the war memorials in every small town and metropolis in this country.

3. Third, feel. As you look at the monuments and gravestones of those who fought for our freedom, think about the cost and the sacrifice they made for the family members.

Stop, see, feel this Memorial Day.
