Military Exchanges rely on the Department of Defense to fill most of our transportation needs, which includes shipping us the coinage we need to keep our facilities running. However, the DoD has determined that pennies are too heavy and are not cost effective to ship.

Rounding to the nearest nickel has been used in American Military communities overseas since 1980. Our "round-up, round-down" policy applies only to cash purchases. If the last digit of the total purchase ends in three, four, six or seven, your purchase will be rounded to the nearest nickel. If the last digit of the total purchase ends in one, two, eight, or nine, your total purchase would be rounded to the nearest dime. This is a break even policy we believe is fair and equitable.
