Comment: What is the deal with self-propelled skateboards and bicycles? When I went through the Area Orientation Brief, I remember being told that hover boards and electric scooters were illegal both on and off base. Recently, I’ve seen a person on a self-propelled skateboard riding from the shipyard area to the main gate.

Response: You are correct, powered (self-propelled) vehicles such as motorized skateboards, kickboards, scooters or hover boards are not authorized on base and under Japanese laws are illegal. Use of these vehicles off-base, if stopped by local police, can result in fines of up to 500,000 yen (more than $4,500). The only exceptions to these laws are battery-assisted bicycles, wheelchairs and mobility scooters used by the disabled and or elderly. Security Forces personnel have been directed to enforce these standards and violators can have their unauthorized self-propelled vehicles confiscated and/or impounded. For additional information contact the Vehicle Registration Office at 243-5011.
