NAVY CONTRACTOR INSPECTS LINCOLN MILITARY HOMES

Norfolk, Va. –Earlier this week, the Navy contracted with Marine Chemist Services out of Newport News VA, to conduct inspections of approximately 12 Lincoln Military homes. At least nine of the homes previously had inspections completed by LMH contractor Apex.

The inspections began Wednesday, Dec. 14 and will continue until all 12 homes are completed. As of yesterday evening, two homes had been inspected and two additional homes are scheduled for inspection today. Work at the homes will include mold inspections in the form of visual examinations with additional testing, including air sampling and tape samplings, as required.

Inspection results are expected within five business days. Families will sit down with Navy representatives to review results upon receipt in order to answer any questions and discuss further action should it be needed.

The Navy has also granted approval for Lincoln Military Housing to contract for any additional inspections with Froehling & Robertson, Inc. in Richmond, Virginia.
